

Professionally, Dr. Vinit Dubey is a Doctor of Physical Therapy. Born and brought up in the city of Dreams, Home of Bollywood, Mumbai.

Vinit Dubey started his passion for acting at very early age. He was actively involved in plays, theater and one act plays, when he was in school, winning multiple Best Actor Awards. He studied Physical Therapy from Srinivas College of Physical Therapy, Mangalore, where he continued to host many events and again winning accolades of being the best Host on stage. He came to the USA in 2010 to pursue Masters in Physical Therapy from Loma Linda University, California and went on to also pursue his Doctoral in Physical Therapy from University of Montana. But somewhere the creative energy was still alive and while being a full time Physical Therapist in New York, he continued to brush his acting skills by taking acting classes in New York City.

In an active PT career spanning over 8 years, Vinit has received numerous awards and recognitions for being an exceptional Physical Therapist and being admired by his patients and colleagues alike. He is also a recognized 'Professor Emeritus' from Srinivas University, Mangalore, and he conducts various seminars, workshops for Physical therapy students in India under the banner of the company he founded last year 'Beyond Radix'.

Vinit Dubey started his acting career by acting in his school plays to hosting in his college back in the days. He continued to catch his dream and lived up throughout the years of becoming an actor even after moving to the States. He has played roles in multiple short films and movies such as Happy Family, Talk to Me, Headspace, One Nation under ICE, Faking Real, Married to Elvis, some of which won Best Short film award at various Short film festivals across the United States. His recent comedy short film, 'Where does it Hurt?' has drawn immense attention for him playing the lead character. The trailer of which was screened on the billboard in Times Square, New York City and the movie is available on Amazon Prime.

Recently, released music-video "Kabhi Yeh Socha Na Tha" by T-Series and renowned singer, music director Dr. Utkarsh Shinde has garnered lots of love from the viewers on YouTube in which Vinit Dubey and Irena Leo play the lead character and he also directed the music video by himself.